Fort Wayne's Renaissance

Fort Wayne is experiencing a level of growth we have not seen in a hundred years. We are witnessing historic investment in all quadrants of our City with a particular emphasis on SE Fort Wayne, informed by the SE Strategy. These investments include streetscape projects on Pontiac and Oxford Streets, new parks, and the largest, new, market-rate single-family development in 50 years at Roosevelt Reserves.

The City of Fort Wayne Redevelopment Department has partnered with private developers on downtown mixed-use projects like The Pearl, The Landing, Riverfront at Promenade, and Lofts at Headwaters, to name a few; as well as public projects like the Urban Trail and Riverfront Public Space.

Perhaps the most exciting upcoming initiative builds on this growth and momentum by taking it north across the river to the North River Fieldhouse and Mixed-Use District, which will be transformational in attracting tens of thousands of new visitors every year to participate in sports tourism and bolstering the local economy.

Join City of Fort Wayne Redevelopment Director, Alec Johnson, for a recap of our progress and a behind-the-scenes glimpse of our future.
